Be confident and talk to as many people as often as possible! Don't be ashamed to make mistakes! The more you practice, the better and more confident your pronunciation and vocabulary will be. Remember, speech is a skill like learning a musical instrument or a new sport - the only way to achieve good is to do it! A smartphone can be a powerful tool for learning languages. Use yourself to record what you are saying, then listen again to see how your English sounds to others. Make effective use of all your favorite productivity apps to organize your workout time and record all the new words you learn. Online dictionaries often have audio examples so you can check your pronunciation and there are lots of great dictionary apps that you can take everywhere with you on your smartphone. Make sure not to become too reliant on these tools, though. Have a go at saying the words first then check afterwards to see if you were right! Learning English involves four language skills that are fundamental to speaking and understanding the language. These are the four abilities: listening, reading, speaking and writing. One of the advantages of learning English at CEDEI is that students engage in these skills with their teachers who speak only in English in the classroom so that the students first get used to listening to the language, becoming familiar with it. The listening skills is strengthen this way. Speech practice that helps you learn a language that is useful for everyday communication. Situations include meeting new people, testing understanding, and making suggestions.

And that's what we'll talk about today! Here are 5 ways that can improve your speaking skills in English:

- Choose something to memorize and recite.
- Play English games with a group—or by yourself.
- Try improve in English!
- Give a presentation to an audience or to an empty room!
- Take English classes online with a teacher who uses real, authentic materials.

The learning is focused on the negotiation of meaning, the use of target language for authentic and meaningful communication. Negotiation of meaning is aimed to resolve communication problems. Pedagogical tasks, for example information gaps, aim at the use of strategic interaction and the element of language. One of how a speaker of a foreign language needs to know how to negotiate control of a conversation is through the business of handling turn-taking. It is a rule that manage conversation how participant change when the turn given. This research is aimed at improving the speaking skills of students of the English department. According to the results of interviews conducted to obtain initial information about students' speaking skills, it was found that students face speech problems due to insufficient knowledge of the language, which in turn leads to a feeling of insecurity in speaking students. Students were unfamiliar with a variety of speech activities that facilitated speech. They read the text to convey ideas and lack strategies when speaking. To help students, task-based learning was adapted through movement research in one-semester courses. Fifteen third-semester students participated in this study. Speaking is "the process of building and sharing meaning through the use of verbal and non-verbal symbols, in a variety of contexts". Speech is an important part of learning and teaching a second language. Despite its importance, speech teaching has not been adequately evaluated for many years and English teachers have continued to teach speech as repetition of exercises or memorization of dialogues. However, today's world requires that the goal of teaching speaking should improve students' communicative skills, because, only in that way, students can express themselves and learn how to follow the social and cultural rules appropriate in each communicative circumstance. In order to teach second language learners how to speak in the best way possible, some speaking activities are provided below, that can be applied to ESL and EFL classroom settings, together with suggestions for teachers who teach oral language. Often, people gravitate towards them for support and advice. They are also readers, as reading helps expand the vocabulary and develop the flair for using suitable words for different situations. Thus, practicing speaking skills leads to the development of writing, listening, and reading skills too.

In conclusion, speech is an effective skill and one of the four skills that are very important in learning English. Speech is very helpful in bringing people face to face with their lives. Speaking is the process of sending and receiving a message or information. These strategies are a good strategy to use in teaching speech. The purpose of the conclusion is to summarize your main points and prepare the audience for the end of your speech. You want to reconsider the essence of your speech: your main ideas and the purpose for which you are speaking.
