Today, as time and time accelerates, the attitude of humanity to its own and other people's rights and freedoms is changing. Of course, on the positive side, and because of this, we can cite as an example the fact that all violations are quickly exposed through modern technologies. Of course, it is more beneficial for society and the state to prevent a crime before anyone gets hurt than to expose it after it has happened. Education is considered to be the main issue in the development of a person, and it has a great place in his effective work in society and respect for the rights and opinions of others. There are different types of education, and the education that affects their implementation is not only voluntary, but mandatory, and this is legal education. Let's talk about the concept of legal education. Legal education is a concept that expresses the process of continuously inculcating legal knowledge into the culture and consciousness of society members through various means of influence. Legal education, in a broad sense, means the process of forming the legal consciousness and legal culture of the members of the society, inculcating their rights and duties in the consciousness of the individual. Legal education in a narrow sense means methods and tools that serve to increase the level of legal knowledge and cultural level of citizens. Legal education in the development of the state and society and citizenship The role in building the foundations of society is determined by the level of legal knowledge and skills of individuals and citizens. Legal education is carried out through the existing system, state and government bodies, neighborhood, family, outsiders and their activities. Legal education is considered a multifaceted and complex process, and its problems are studied in the framework of such disciplines as jurisprudence, pedagogy and psychology, national idea, foundations of spirituality, ethics and aesthetics. The effectiveness of legal education is determined by the harmonious implementation of the activities of the family, neighborhood, educational institutions in the spiritual and educational sphere, the subjects of law respect the law, observe the current legal norms, and every aspect of the offense is in order to react with intolerance to its manifestations, they must first have information about the nature of law, its role in society, and its positive importance in organizing people's lives. Legal education plays a key role in this. "Legal education is a goal-oriented continuous activity of the state, its bodies and employees, public associations and labor teams in order to form and raise legal awareness and legal culture.

The principles of legal education are a set of basic, important rules and requirements that are based and relied upon in the implementation of legal education. The principles of legal education include the following:

- legal education with social life, including legal activity and legal practice organic connection;
- legal educational scientificity, its basis on the achievements of science and legal knowledge;
- to strengthen the legality, raise the authority of the law, the current laws orientation to know and be able to use them;
- comprehensibility and imagery of legal education.

Legal education is the branch that plays the biggest role in the development of legal education. Instilling legal literacy through legal concepts and background knowledge through legal education is an effective way. Among the means of legal education, legal education has a special place. It can be said that legal education is the basis of legal consciousness, legal culture, legal state. The task of improving legal education, including legal education, has become our priority for the establishment of a legal state. These two legal events can be distinguished somewhat depending on the object and direction of influence. Education, including legal education, mainly affects the emotional-volitional, value system and worldview of the human mind. Education, including legal education, affects the rational aspect of the human mind in the context of information. Legal education is an additional component of legal culture, i.e. mastering all the positive and valuable aspects that entitle a person. The combination of moral qualities and legal knowledge forms the basis of a high-level legal culture. Mastering the foundations of state legislation creates an opportunity to have a positive attitude to rights and laws, creates the need to fulfill them.

If the knowledge and information about legality and its social importance are not reinforced by a positive level of legality in real life, it is difficult to hope that it will be deeply embedded in people's minds as a value and become a program of action and internal necessary confidence. Or, one can cite a lot of ideas and examples from world practice about the "distribution of powers and at the same time interaction" which is a reasonable, tested principle of the organization of state power. However, since this principle is not fully implemented in every country, it is unlikely that it will take a place in people's legal consciousness as an important democratic value. Therefore, when legal education is in harmony with social practice and real life, it takes an appropriate place in people's minds and hearts and affects their behavior and worldview. Democratic values are confirmed only in the Constitution and laws, announced in the promises of politicians, and values that do not exist in practice are repeated repeatedly by educators, but they cannot effectively influence the subject's mind. Grow up the features of the legal education of the coming young generation are based on the character and lifestyle of the new society. Their principle expresses the need to solve new, more complex problems. First of all, legal education is considered an effective tool for the development of the young generation.

Many measures and laws are being developed for the development of legal education. Legal education has a unique place in the organization of civic education among students. As stated in the "Concept of educational activities outside the classroom and school" announced in March 1993: "The main goals and tasks of legal education are the Constitution, the doctrine of the state, such as citizenship, family, labor, economy, from explaining the meaning of the rights of guardianship, pension, conducting and managing court cases, respecting children's state laws at a high level, obeying them unconditionally, feeling the need to acquire judicial knowledge, raising them in the spirit of tolerance towards violators of order and discipline, important issues of international law, is to form general ideas of students about the activities of international organizations (UN, Security Council, etc.) Legal education and training has interdependence, coherence, connection and dialectical character, and is a guarantee of forming the legal culture of an individual. Because legal education provides students with legal norms, laws and social It is a process of providing systematic knowledge about the essence of legal relations, creating a need for acquiring legal knowledge, forming legal consciousness, and it should be organized in a consistent, continuous, and systematic way.

Also, one of the most important schools for the development of legal education in the human mind is the army, which is the school of life. The importance and role of many patriotic month events in making young people love the country and serve it with loyalty is incomparable. In particular, in connection with the 29th anniversary of the Armed Forces and "January 14 - Day of Defenders of the Fatherland", in order to fulfill the 10th paragraph of the program of events in the appendix of the order F-5614 of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan dated December 17, 2020, among the young students, "My army is my I'm proud!" an exhibition of creative works was organized. Such events contribute to increasing the interest of young people in the life of the army, as well as increasing the sense of military patriotism.

In order to make legal education more effective, it is necessary to establish hours of legal education on radio broadcasts, television shows and social networks. At the school level, there are very few hours of lessons in the field of law, so I think it is necessary to start from the pre-school level.

Because in the future, the generation with high legal education will be far away from drastic actions that contradict the legal interests of society and individuals.
