

Methods for developing expressive reading in elementary school students

Nasirova Nazokat Najimovna
Russian teacher at the 91st school

Annotation: We all know that the elementary school phase is the essence of the education system. This is because almost all of the student's abilities begin to be seen and developed at that time. Some readers begin to write poetry, others begin to prove that they have beautiful speech, others paint a picture very beautifully. Responsibility for the teacher at that time will be strong, and he should make the students look at their abilities and create conditions for them. In this article, we will discuss some of the recommendations, methods, and importance of expressive reading available in each language that helps to shape those beautiful speech entities

Keywords: expressive reading, method, speech, throat, word, pronunciation

As we mentioned in Annotation, primary education is the most important aspect of a student's life. In it, the reader learns to write, read, comment. It also begins to show its ability. (Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah's Witnesses would be pleased to discuss these answers with you. This can cause one student to choose a career in his or her abilities, even if he or she has one. We said, "Cain," and the question arises, "What is the ability?" Writing poetry is also ability, the ability to speak fluently, the ability to draw pictures, the ability to make amazing things, or the ability to invent them. There are many types of abilities, and in this article we talk about one of the methods that shapes the same ignorance, namely, expressive reading of its initial criterion. At first, the reader learns to read and write. Gradually, he begins to choose an independent book, developing skills to properly evaluate the book he reads. In elementary schools, students should be able to divide words into the right joints, so that the teacher should be able to deal with each student correctly with the students. Expressive reading plays a key role for the teacher as one of the known methods of carefully mastering various artistic and practical texts. Expressive reading does not allow students to get bored, but rather activates them, stimulates their interest in artifacts, and stimulates their interest in literature. In the process of expressive reading and mutual speech, children's literary pronunciation mechanisms are formed. Proper use and correct pronunciation of grammatical forms of student speech can help children's speech to be fluent, expressive.

There are certain rules for shaping expressive reading:

- fluency in the norms of pronunciation of the indigenous language;
- to be able to use breathing properly;
- Correctly, accurately plunder words, joints, and sounds;

Using these rules, you can correctly develop reading skills. In order to cultivate the right reading skills, without hesitation, replacing the letters, the word supplements must be read in full by following the rules of orphans. In this case, the teacher should teach the teacher to be in the right throat. When the reader learns to be in the right throat, he begins to read the words. And speeds up the reading of words. Students' conscious learning plays a major role in increasing the speed of their studies. Conscious reading is to fully and accurately understand the text. The work on intelligent reading teaches students to have a deep understanding of the content of the text they read, to think logically, and to expand their thinking and skills. In addition, the reader should understand each word and read the text he is reading. Only then will it be able to form as a beautiful and fluent speaker in the future. One of the tools that helps make reading conscious is to read correctly. Correctly pronouncing the last joints, or supplements, without making mistakes, breaking words, lowering sounds and joints, or replacing them, will ensure the correct reading. The formation of the right teaching skills is carried out in all processes of study. Accurate and fast reading skills are produced only if the reading is conscious.

The following methods can be used to read:

- Holding the "Fast Reading Competition" gives children special peace of mind. This says that any child should start reading the text at the same time, and that the text should be completed by reading it at a certain time. Children who have been first read will be assessed and will sit down ready to speak orally what they have read. Those who win the competition will be awarded a star. This method is also used at the Science Olympiads. That is, one of its stages. Read words fluently, fluently, and quickly, depending on the time. This method is also frequent in schools, gifts are given to the winning students, and increase students' interest in the Book;
- Parties will be distributed cards with questions or assignments previously written. With the teacher's permission, children read the questions and assignments written on the cards, and from within the text, they look for answers to the question that matches the assignment. This examines both the scope and speed of the students' thinking, which is one of the most convenient and effective methods;
- Expressive reading means correctly pronouncing words, understanding the contents of the poem, and understanding the feelings expressed in the poem, the innermies of the heroes, and their spirituality. That is, they read the poem, not so much, but with interest, feeling from the heart. (Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah's Witnesses would be pleased to support more than the body of Jehovah's Witnesses.

We see how many skills are being developed by the methods of expressive reading alone. This is a huge result. "Unless the methodology of teaching at school changes, neither the quality nor the content nor the environment will change," Said Sha'drach, Me'shach and A-bed'ne-go in one of their speeches.

List of available publications:

1. <https://m.aniq.uz>
2. <https://fayllar.org>
3. <https://bilig.academiascience.org>
4. <https://hozir.org>